

LAW VIOLATORS ARE HUNTING WILD GAME

The Warm Weather Has Driven Many Waterfowl North Before Lakes Are Opened.

Rock river, both above and below the city, swarms with wild fowl that have been driven north by the spring weather and open waters, even though the lakes are still frozen several feet thick. Despite the strict game laws relative to spring shooting, the toughness of the birds themselves, and their long flight from the south, and the confidence they display in stopping so near a city, some of the scrupulous hunters have appeared and are bagging with ease. Game police are doing their utmost to prevent them and members of the game protective association are planning for co-operation with them to prevent this slaughter of fowl at this season of the year. Many persons have taken walks up and down the river to view the sight of the thousands of ducks which swim within a dozen feet of the shore in many places, unmindful of the spectators who watch them from the banks. On the prairie lands it is said there are many geese which are fed in the fields with corn and grain were grown, but they are more wild than the river fowl, which can be seen above any morning or afternoon house or below the Monmouth Dam. It is understood a new game warden will be named for Rock county the first of April, which will help in protecting the game interests.

Tiger Superstitions.

The people of India believe that the ghost of a man killed by a tiger rides on the head of the beast that slew him to warn him of danger and to guide him to new victims. It is declared that Providence provides for the tiger's daily wants to the amount of a rupee (2 shillings) a day—that is to say, if a tiger kills a calf worth 6 rupees he will not be allowed another victim for five days. Eating the flesh of a tiger is supposed to give one great courage and alertness, but the whistlers must first be slung off the beast, or his spirit will haunt the man who fed him, and he is likely to be turned into a tiger in the next world.—Exchange.

NEED CLEAN-UP DAYS TO PROTECT HEALTH

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., March 30.—Favoring every precautionary measure known to lessen the menace of infantile paralysis in Wisconsin, the state board of health this week voted to urge all municipalities in the state to institute a thorough, systematic spring clean-up. With present knowledge of the matter of food, habits and environment is considered the best preventative of a scourge like that which reaped a heavy toll of life in many states last summer.

Experience has shown that whatever protects against such communicable diseases as measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough also protects against polio-myelitis. Communicable diseases, therefore, should be gotten rid of before summer, and children's health so built up as to enable them to resist disease as far as possible during warm weather.

The injunction to Wisconsin cities and towns is to clean up and keep clean, to prevent flies and mosquitoes from breeding, to supervise food regulation, especially milk, to remove rubbish and dirt from home surroundings, and to observe baby week in a practical way.

However, the board also says, spasmotic efforts at cleanliness are not enough. A campaign which induces people to clean up and keep clean after the year and which goes after the flies, their breeding spots is considered the most effective from a health point of view. To some, flies do not look as bad as rubbish, but these are bad as rubbish, who do not know where flies breed, what they eat, and the number and variety of disease germs which carry on their feet. These are the kind of flies at which the clean-up campaign is especially aimed.

The board also considered amendments to the rules for the quarantine and control of scarlet fever, but took no formal action.

COMMUNITY MEETINGS.

The community meetings are growing in interest and enthusiasm and to accommodate the different localities, two meetings were arranged for on yesterday. At Dr. Clark's on South Main street, the meeting was addressed by Capt. Ward, who related incident in his personal experiences, especially in connection with his visit to the city in times past. From the Nichols spring "Will It Pay," from the Frances Willard songs, with Miss Brigham playing her accompaniments.

The meeting held at the home of Mrs. Sanger on Terrace street was addressed by Mrs. Ward. Her line of talk was along the line of a poem which she quoted at the beginning of her remarks, and as it expressed what she tried to convey, we will give it entire:

Fair as the sunshine, pure as the snow,
Out from the hearthstone the children
dren go.
A lie goes wrong on a crowded street
Wait the coming of guileless feet.
Child of the rich and child of the poor,
Pass to their wreck through the drain shop door.
Oh, say, votis, will they come as they go,
Fair as the sunshine, pure as the snow?
Mrs. J. S. Taylor presided at this meeting, and Mrs. George Austin sang a solo with Miss Bennett as accompanist.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT. Written and publication authorized by the Dry Janesville Committee and to be paid for by them at the rate of 50c per inch.

Reasonable Reasons why Janesville Should Vote Dry

For the Good of the whole community---which means every man, woman and child.

Everything to gain by putting our home town dry---and clean

READ THESE ACTUAL FACTS

Vacant Stores

Richland Center, Wis.—"All the saloon buildings have long since been occupied by other lines of business."

Waupaca, Wis.—"The change left only three or four out of twelve saloon buildings unoccupied for a period of longer than three months, and some of these were occupied within a year."

Superior, Wis.—"The change left no buildings unoccupied longer than three months excepting some held by brewers for a double reason—(1) to go into business again and (2) to make it look bad."

Lancaster, Wis.—"When our town voted dry, no saloon buildings remained unoccupied longer than three months."

Viroqua, Wis.—"When the saloons were voted out, no buildings remained unoccupied longer than three months."

Dodgeville, Wis.—"The saloon buildings are all occupied for other purposes and all saloonkeepers entered other business. We have not a vacant store building or office in the city. We have from twenty to thirty new dwelling houses being erected each year and there is not a vacant house in the city."

Viroqua, Wis.—"All the saloon buildings have been rented for other purposes. No business location vacant in this city."

Rockford.—

New dwellings	$ 459,000
Remodeled dwellings	100,500
Municipal improvements	400,000
Business and industrial	1,800,000

Grand total 1914 growth $2,759,500

Denver, Col.—"The 463 saloon buildings are all occupied. 80% of the empty houses have been filled up. The last wet year Denver had thousands of empty houses."

Stoughton, Wis.—"We have no more empty buildings than formerly. In fact a great many new buildings have been built since the city voted dry."

An Increase in all Retail Business

During the time that Superior has been dry, we have not had a single grocery failure. One grocer went out of business July first last, the day the saloons closed, but paid one hundred cents on the dollar. All our grocers are thriving. One firm says:—

"We are in business in the Fourth Ward (which is the stronghold of the liquor interests) and we want to say that our business has materially improved since July first. After allowing for the increased cost of goods, there is a marked increase in our sales. Men who never cashed checks with us when we had saloons now cash them with us and give us a liberal order—twice what they did before. Where one drunken man comes into the store now, there were twenty before. We prefer their custom when they are sober. We shall do all we can to keep the town dry."

Here is an expression from a large contracting firm: "We wish to express our satisfaction with labor conditions during the year that Superior has been dry. During the season of navigation men were somewhat scarce, in fact more so than they have been for several years, but we did not experience the difficulty in retaining our men or of having them go up town while our tugs and scows were at the dock and then fail to return on account of becoming intoxicated. Not only did we find the labor situation in connection with our marine work much more satisfactory than when the town was wet but there was considerably less changing among the men who work for us around our yard and shop. The drawing of money between paydays is practically unheard of, while in previous years we were continually having to pay our men at various times in order to keep them."

All of a Man's Earnings Go Home

The wife of a railroad man who had long owed $20.00 at a certain store stopped in and paid it. As she handed the money over she said: "My husband now brings home his whole check instead of saloons getting it."

A few weeks ago a woman, who had for years, taken house cleaning jobs to support herself and family, was called up and offered work of that kind. Her answer was: "I can't come." Why not? she was asked. There was a note of pride in her voice as she answered. "My husband won't let me go out any more. He used to spend his money at the saloons. Now he supports me and the children. He is bitterly ashamed that he ever let me do that kind of work."

MEN You should vote dry because there's much to gain.

Largest Department Store has a 75% gain

Roth Bros. Co., Superior Wis., makes the following report:

Gain of business after July 1, 1916, as compared with preceding year:

July, 1916-1915	10%
Aug. 1916-1915	18%
Sept. 1916-1915	18%
Oct. 1916-1915	25%
Nov. 1916-1915	28%
Dec. 1916-1915	37%
Jan. 1917-1916	66%
Feb. 1917-1916	75%

(First six days only)

Mr. Roth states: "In 1916 I voted dry for moral reasons. In 1916 I again voted dry for moral reasons, but in 1917 I will vote dry for both moral and business reasons."

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, March 30, 1877.—It has been a gloomy Good Friday.

The political kettle is beginning to boil.

The republicans are preparing for an animated fight on Tuesday. They are going into the cleaning out business on that day.

The first convention will be held at Court Street church next Monday night. The farmers present will not be allowed to talk during this convention.

P. L. said that Lete Taylor will abandon the saloon business in the Myers House block, and that he will purchase the Snyder House at Clinton next week.

A young man in the second ward, whose name we will at this time withhold from the public, is guilty of gross indecency in the exposure of his person. This announcement is made as a warning to him. If he repeats his outrageous acts, he will soon find himself in the hands of the officers.

Yesterday a lady living near the gas house, went to the river to get some water. She stepped on a piece of thin ice and went into the river. She was rescued before any special harm was done.

---and the Worst Is Yet to Come

Nothing to Worry About.

"Oh, George," sobbed the bride after the ceremony, "I have a confession to make! I have always been afraid to tell you that I don't know how to cook."

"That'll be all right," replied George. "With the salary I'm making we'll never have anything to cook."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHATCHAMA COLUMN.

Salt.

Salt is a white, bullheaded seasoning that has to be put in a shaker and handled roughly before it will mind.

It has an awful crust at times and must be pulverized into submission. It will balk and stall around its retreat as long as it can, coming out in the open only when you threaten it with the blunt end of a fork.

Then it has spells of melancholy. You might as well let it alone when it gets one of these. It grows soggy and dull. There is nothing in the world more morose than a soggy shakerful of salt.

When our salt gets stubborn and mulish we say to ourselves, but not so our wife can bear. "Well, perhaps we are now dealing with a chunk of the salt."

Let's wife turned to.

Freedom of Will.

The Daily Novelette

THE DIFFICULT LIMBS.

Chiseio, a young Greek sculptor of considerable promise, but no means, was working on a partly draped figure in his garret at Athens, when his friend Scribes, the journalist, dropped in.

"Not half rotten, Chis," he approved. "But the arms! Oh, Chis, when will you ever learn to do arms?"

"Never," said the sculptor despondently. "I should have taken up slave feeding to go hemming!" (See Sloga Wrenna's "Trades of Early Greece.")

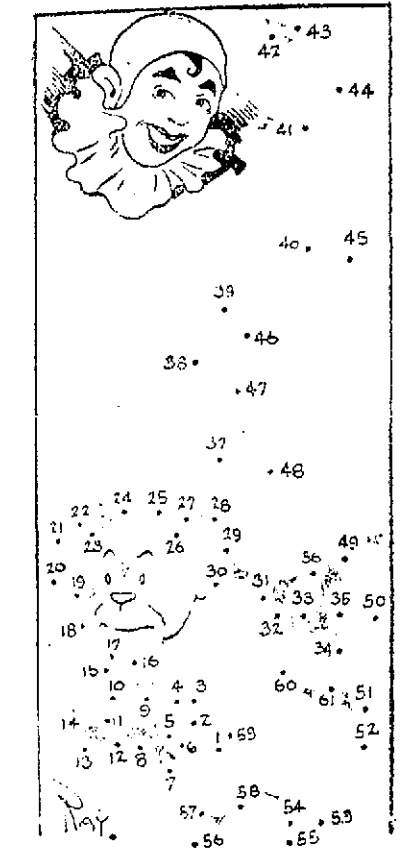

"Cheer up!" cried the journalist. "Here's a large idea. Chop off the arms altogether and sell the thing to the Melos Morning Rattle. They're great on guessing contests, you know. What was the correct position of the lady's missing arms?—ten prizes in gold. Got me, Chis?" (See Artemus Blurb's "Origins of American Slang.")

"Life saver!" cried Chiseio fervent.

The Morning Rattle welcomed the idea, bought the statue for 4000 drachmas ($8.75), exhibited it in front of the Rattle building during the month the contest was on, and then stored it away in the basement, from which, twelve hundred years later, it was excavated and christened Venus de Milo.

A WORD OF CHEER.

When we are weary or discouraged, how a cheering word will brighten the day and lighten the load for us! Knowing this, why are we so forgetful of the help we might give to others?

Now trace from one to fifty-nine.

And see my pet, he's very fine.

Draw from one to two and so on to the end.

A want ad will rent that house.

Opportunities of all kinds are listed.

MYERS THEATRE.

Coming, The Great Graves. Beginning Monday, April 2, and continuing the entire week at the Myers theatre, The Great Graves commences an engagement extraordinary. Graves is by far the foremost hypnotist of his time. He comes highly praised by both press and local managers, wherever he has appeared this season. Last week in Rock Island, at the Illinois theatre, he played a card of business all week. All of Graves' work is on a new and novel line and is far away from the usual performance presented by other operators of this peculiar science. There is more real comedy and hearty laughter in an evening with Graves than in a half a dozen with a so-called musical or farce comedy on the road. This will be an entertainment out of the usual run and one that you will come again to see as the program changes nightly.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

TO A LADY.

Oh Lady, you know that it's seldom, if ever, I find any fault with the things that you wear.

Your clothes, as a rule, are decidedly clever.

Your clothes, as a rule, I assure you, are there.

But lately, alack! you distress, you alarm me.

Permit me politely to say, if you please, they do allure, ravish, gladden and charm me.

The shoes you are wearing way up to your knees!

Oh, wear if you will in your tresses that feather.

Or wear little booties that lace in the rear.

Wear gowns made of rubber and jackets of leather.

Or hats that are fashioned to straddle the ear.

Far be it from me to discredit the clothes of a lady, I'm sure you are as these.

But won't you abandon, relinquish, dispose of

The shoes you are wearing way up to your knees!

The styles just as well as the ways of a maid are

At times quite a riddle, at times quite a jest.

But two you now favor alas! I'm afraid are More foolish and frightful than all of the rest.

Oh, many indeed are your follies just two I deplore and the two they are these.

To put it succinctly and shortly and briefly,

The shoes you are wearing way up to your knees!

Happy Thought.

Living may cost more than it ever did, but there are lots of added attractions.

The Happy Days.

In youth I envied most I know. Not, on the whole and as a rule, The lot whose waists were white as snow.

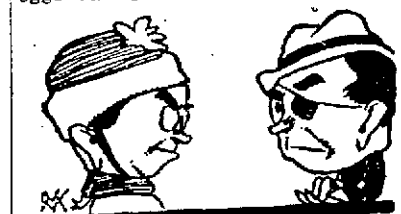

Nor him held very bright at school.

Nor him whose father owned a coach (They had few autos then, my dears).

But most I envied Arthur Roach, For he could wiggle both his ears!

The Beggar and the Fat Dame.

There was a beggar who sat at the gates of the city crying, Alms! Alms! and making pitiful moans. And there were many of great riches who saw him daily and merchants laden with silks and spices and fresh eggs and potatoes going their way to the city markets to barter, but they gave him little heed and few alms.

Cometh a day when a fat dame paused to give him her pity, to spend a moment and pay him her regards, but to give him of coins and of pieces of gold, not any.

And she inquired of him, saying, I, thou art in rags and the blight of sloth is upon thee. Thou takest little pains with thy personal appearance and thou art lazy as no man was ever lazy before. Hast thou ever been thus with thee or how didst thou come to such?

And he made answer, I once had a very political job and I've never been able to go back to work since!

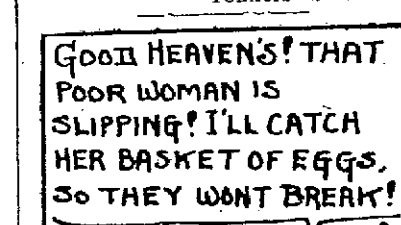

Many a big Shino thinks he has lots of Polish.

Safety First.

A trip to Europe we would make, But just before we sail, We'll be quite certain that we take Now, if you go to take a sail From little old New York, Forget your weighty suit of mail And wear a suit of cork.—Yonkers Statesman.

BOWER CITY BAND CONCERT PLEASURES

Creditable Program Presented Thursday Evening at Myers Theatre Before Large Audience.

A very creditable program was presented by the Bower City band at their concert at the Myers opera house last evening. The large audience present, seemed to thoroughly enjoy the selections, including as they did some of the latest popular music, as well as the always satisfactory arrangements from the standard operas. Thirty members of the band, and their work showed very plainly the good results of faithful practice, under the careful direction of Prof. Thiele. The solo parts were well taken on, and the leads, especially the clarinets and cornets, were rendered with brilliancy and effect. The trombone solo played by Mr. Christman was given with an ease and smoothness of tone that was remarkable. The following numbers were presented:

PART I.

Overture—"American." Catlin

Valtz—"Wedding of the Winds." Hall

Dream Picture—"Uncle Tom's Cabin." Lampe

Song—"Mammy's Little Coal Black Rose." Whiting

PART II.

Musical Reading—"Comique." Selected

Miss Ethel Woodstock, Chicago.

Overture—"Lizzella." Rabbie

Medley—"Waterson, Berlin, Snyder Hits." Schulz

Intermission.

PART III.

Overture—"Wedding Ring." Barnard

Selection—"I Trow." Verdi

Trombone solo—"Air Variet." Harlow

S. Christman.

Song—"Let's All Be Americans." Berlin

Now—"Robert S. Dailey." Selected

Reading—"Polyanna." Selected

Miss Ethel Woodstock, Chicago.

Selection—"Martha." Von Suppe

Overture—"Jolly Robbers." Plotow

STAR SPANGLED BANNER.

The readings by Miss Ethel Woodstock were charmingly given and were received with great favor, that she was obliged to respond to several encores. Robert Dailey always carries his audience with him, from the moment he appears before them, and in "Mammy's Little Coal Black Rose," and the rousing new patriotic song, "Let's All Be Americans Now," he surpassed himself.

The whole entertainment presented proved very satisfactory, both to the audience and to the band, who appreciate highly the cordial support given to their efforts by the citizens and the public generally.

Force of Habit.

"I suppose you form an attachment for an automobile," said the imaginative woman, "as you do for a horse."

"Yes," replied Mr. Chuggins. "But an auto isn't intelligent like a horse. If it were, it would be leaving the road and trying to turn in at every station house or repair shop."—Washington Star.

are still $17, but the price of nearly everything else has jumped.

When the war came everyone in the clothing business thought that wool would go up. The makers of Styleplus Clothes $17 on account of their extensive advertising were duty bound to keep on supplying the public with "all wool fabrics, expert tailoring, the skill of a great designer," at the known price $17—provided there was any way on earth to do it.

What happened? These makers bought wools and linings in tremendous quantity. They kept on advertising "the price remains the same." Volume doubled, manufacturing costs dropped because of the increased production—new efficiency and new economies came to light through the "necessity of the hour."

Incidentally, the makers as well as ourselves have been content with a smaller profit in order to keep your price the same.

HEART OF THE SUNSET

MAIR distracted, Alaire roamed through the house, awaiting their captor's coming, steeling herself for their final battle. But the delay was trying; she longed for the crisis to come, that this terrible suspense might be ended. At such an hour her thoughts naturally turned to Dave Law, and she found herself yearning for him with a yearning utterly new. His love had supported her through these miserable days at Las Palmas, but now it was a torture; she called his name wildly, passionately. He knew her whereabouts and her peril—why did he not come? Then, more calmly, she asked herself what he, or what anyone, could do for her. How could she look for succor when two nations were at war?

Night had come before she finally gave up and acknowledged the hopelessness of her situation. She had fought bravely, but with darkness her fears grew blacker. She was on the verge of her first breakdown, when, in the early dusk outside, she heard voices and the stamping of horses' hoofs. The sounds were muffled by the heavy wooden shutters she had taken pains to close and bar, but they told her Longorio had returned. Since it was futile to deny him entrance, she waited where she was. Old Panchos' voice sounded outside; then there came a knock upon the door of the room in which she stood.

"Come in," she said tensely.

The lieutenant thrust his head in, and, removing his hat, announced, "There is someone here to see General Longorio on important business. He says you will do."

"Yes. He says he is one of us—" Panchos was pushed aside, the door was flung back, and a man strode swiftly into the lamp-lit room. He paused, blinking as if momentarily blinded, and Alaire clutched at the nearest chair for support. A roaring began in her ears; she felt herself sway forward as if the strength had left her knees. She heard Dave's voice faintly; he was saying:

"Take care of my horse. Feed and water her well. Understand? When General Longorio comes tell him I am waiting here."

As if in a dream, Alaire saw the Mexican go out, closing the door behind him. Then she saw Dave come toward her, heard him speak her name, felt his arms around her.

Alaire did not swoon, but she never could remember very distinctly those first few moments. Scarcely knowing what she did, she found herself clinging to her lover, laughing, weeping, feeling him over with shaking hands that would not be convinced of his reality. She was aware of his kisses upon her ups, her eyes, her hair; he was saying something which she could not understand because of that roaring in her ears.

"You heard me calling," she told him at last. "Oh, I was—so frightened!" She clung closer to him. After a time she discovered that she was mechanically nodding and shaking her head at the questions he was putting to her, but had only the vaguest idea what they were. By and by she began to tell him about Longorio, speaking in a sort of hypnotic murmur, as if her words issued at his mental suggestion. And all the time she struggled against his breath.

"Dearest!" Dave held her away in gentle hands. "I was afraid you'd go to pieces like this, but I had to break through the best way I could. I learned you were here and something about what was going on from the people at the next ranch. But I expected to find him here, too."

"How did you manage to get here?" "I hardly know. I just wouldn't let 'em stop me. This lieutenant wouldn't let me in until I told him I was from Monterey with important news. I don't remember all I did tell him. I tried to get here last night, but I had trouble. They caught me, and I had to buy my way through. I've bribed and bullied and lied clear from Romero. I reckon they couldn't imagine I'd risk being here if I wasn't a friend."

It was more Dave's tone than his words that roused Alaire to an appreciation of what he said.

"Are you alone?" she asked, in vague dismay. "Then what are we going to do?"

"I don't know yet. My plans ended here."

"Dave! You rode in just to find me! Just to be with me?"

"Yes. And to get him." Alaire saw his face twitch, and realized that it was very haggard, very old and tired. "They lifted my guns—a bunch of fellows at the Rio Negro crossing. Some of them were drunk and wouldn't believe I was an amigo. So I finally had to ride for it."

"Can't you take me away?" she asked, faintly. "What will you do when he comes?"

"I reckon I'll manage him somehow. His grip upon her tightened painfully, and she could feel him tremble. "I was afraid I wouldn't find you. —O God, Alaire!" He buried his face in her hair.

"I had at terrible scene with him last night. He insists upon marrying me. I—I was hoping you'd come."

"How could I, when nobody knew where you were?"

"Didn't you know? I wrote you. He shook his head. "Then how did you learn?"

"From Jose. I caught him within an hour of the murder, and made him tell me everything."

Alaire's eyes dilated; she held herself away, saying breathlessly: "Murder? Is that what it was? He—Longorio—told me something quite different."

"Naturally. It was he who hired Jose to do the shooting."

"Oh—!" Alaire hid her face in her hands. She looked up again quickly, however, and her cheeks were white. "Then he won't spare you, Dave?" She choked for an instant. "We must get away before he comes. There must be some way of escape. Think!"

"I'm pretty tired to think. I'm pretty near played out," he confessed.

"They're watching me, but they'd let you go."

"Now that I'm here I'm going to stay until—"

She interrupted, crying his name loudly. "Dave!"

"Yes. What is it?"

"Wait! Let me think." She closed her eyes; her brows drew together as if in the labor of concentration. When she lifted her lids her eyes were alert, her voice was eager. "I know how! I see it. He won't dare— But you must do what I tell you."

"Of course."

"No questions. Understand?"

When he nodded impatiently she ran to the door and, flinging it open, called down the hall:

"Father! Father O'Malley! Quick!"

Then she summoned Dolores.

The priest answered, he hurried from his room and, with a dazed lack of comprehension, acknowledged his swift introduction to Dave. Alaire was keenly alive and vibrant with purpose now. Dolores, too, came running, and while the men were exchanging greetings her mistress murmured something in her ear, then hastened her departure with a quick push. Turning upon the others, Alaire explained:

"I've sent for some of the women, and they'll be here in a minute. Father, this man has come for me. He loves me. Will you marry us before he gets away?"

"Longorio arrives?"

"Alaire!" Dave exclaimed. "She stilled him with a gesture. "Quick! Will you?"

Father O'Malley was bewildered. "I don't understand," he expostulated. "Nor I," echoed Dave.

"You don't need to understand. I know what I'm doing. I've thought of a way to save us all."

An incoherent refusal was upon his lips, but Alaire's face besought him; it was shining with a strange, new ecstasy, and he could not bring himself to deny her. Of what her plan consisted he had only the dimmest idea, but he assured himself that it could be no possibility of success. After all, what did it matter? He asked himself, somehow, to cheat Longorio, and—Alaire would be his wife.

"Very well," he stammered, weakly. "What are you thinking of?"

"I haven't thought it all out yet, but—"

At that moment Dolores returned, bringing with her the three black-haired, black-shawled house servants, bundling them through the door and ranging them along the wall.

Father O'Malley's face was puckered; he said, hesitatingly: "My dear madam, this isn't regular; you are not Catholics. How can I bless you?"

"You can marry us legally, just the same, can't you?" Alaire was breathing rapidly, and some part of her eagerness began to thrill her hearers.

"Oh yes, but—"

"Then marry us. And make haste. Please! Please!"

Law nodded. He could not speak, for his mouth was dry. His heart was beating violently; his temples were pounding; all the blood of his body seemed centered in his head.

Before the eyes of the four wondering women Father O'Malley married them. It seemed to Alaire that he would never reach the end, although, in fact, he stumbled through the ceremony swiftly. Alaire clipped his last words short by crying:

"Tell these people so that they'll understand what it all means. Tell them to remember they have seen a marriage by the church."

The priest did as he was directed, and his audience signified their understanding. Then Dolores led them out.

SPRING FEVER

Not Due to Germs From Without But to Toxic Poisons Within the Body.

(By Dr. Valentine Mot.)

At this time of year most people suffer from what we term "spring fever" because of a stagnant condition of the blood, because of the toxic poisons stored up within the body during the long winter. We eat too much meat, with little or no green vegetables. Spinach should be eaten often because it contains 33 percent of iron and makes for better nutrition of the blood.

Bloodless people, thin, anemic people, those with pale cheeks and lips, who have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition in the springtime of the year should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alternative and blood purifier. Such a one which I can heartily recommend, is extracted from Blood root, Golden Seal and Stone root, Queen's root and Oregon Grape root, made up with chemically pure glycerine and without the use of alcohol. This can be obtained in ready-to-use form anywhere, as druggists have sold it for fifty years as Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a standard remedy that can be obtained in tablet or liquid form.

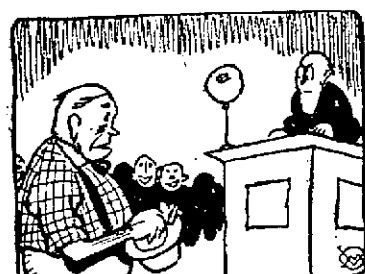

A good purge should be taken once a week even by persons who have a movement daily, in order to eliminate matter which may remain and cause a condition of auto-intoxication. To clean the system at least once a week is to practice preventive measures. There is nothing so good for this purpose as tiny pills made up of the May-apple, leaves of aloe and jalap, and sold by almost all druggists in this country as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.—Advertisement.

"Just like taking the lid off—there's how easy you can lift a corn of your toe after it has been treated with the wonderful discovery—'Gets-It.' Hunt the wide world over and you'll find nothing so magic, simple and easy as 'Gets-It.' You folks who have wrapped your toes in bandages to look like bundles, who have used salves that turned your toes raw and sore, and used plasters that would shift from their place and never "get" the corn, and who have dug and picked at your corns with knives and scissors and perhaps made them bleed—just quit these old and painful ways and try "Gets-It!" just once. You put 2 or 3 drops on, and it dries at once. There's nothing to stick. You can put your shoe and stocking right on again. The pain is all gone. Then the corn dies painless, shriveling, dead. It loosens from your toe, and off it comes. "Gets-It!" is the biggest selling corn remedy in the world today. There's none other so good. March Worst Month for this Trouble—How to Remove Easily.

There's a reason why nearly everybody freckles in March, but happily there is also a remedy for these ugly blemishes, and no one need stay freckled.

so very positive about everything. Remember, there are always two sides to every question.

Whereupon Old Crabton roared back at her: "Well, that's no reason why you should always be on the wrong side!"

There is a clergyman in an Ohio city who is very proud of his record as a marrying parson. One day a man who was visiting him "I marry about fifty couples a week, right here in this parsonage!"

"Parsonage?" returned the Cincinnati man, "I should call it the Union Depot."

"But why does your father object to me?" demanded the humble suitor.

"Because," explained the haughty beauty of proud lineage, "papa says his ancestors have always been gentlemen of leisure, and you have to work."

"Well, tell him I don't expect to after we are married," replied the humble suitor.

POOR FOLKS IN COURT TO HAVE BEST ATTORNEYS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, March 30.—Because unscrupulous lawyers have caused poor people to get unfair treatment in New York courts, a corps of the best lawyers money can buy is being organized under the direction of The Public Defender to see that the poor get a square deal.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and other wealthy men are backing the plan financially. The Public Defense bureau will open Monday. Each case will be prepared for trial by experts and a capable member of the staff assigned to defend it in court.

The plan is favored by members of the New York bar, who say that crooked practitioners have not only dealt unfairly with their poor clients but have in some instances treated their cases in such manner as to lead them into the life of the confined criminal.

In case of death before six years after disablement, Wilcox' measure provides that dependents of the deceased will receive the difference between what has already been paid to the policy and six times 65 percent of the wages.

Mysterious Men

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL
Superintendent of Men, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT: The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is everyone that is born of the Spirit.—John 3:8.

The text sets forth the mystery of the new birth. Psychology has given much attention to the new birth of the soul, and some think it has been taken out of the realm of the mysterious and brought into the realm of the natural. But while the science just mentioned has made valuable observations on the psychic states connected with conversion, the new birth remains as mysterious as ever. The Holy Spirit operates in the region of the subconsciousness and while we hear "the sound thereof" in the effects produced, his work is as mysterious as the wind.

Mystery of the Newborn.

But while the text sets forth the mystery of the new birth, it suggests, also, the mystery of the newborn. We are told that like the wind blowing where it listeth, whose sound is heard, but whose origin and course we cannot trace, "so is everyone that is born of the Spirit." Newborn men are unaccountable to men of the world. They belong to another kingdom whose workings cannot even "see." Their motives, their talk, their behavior, greatly puzzle the unregenerate, between whom and them there is "a great gulf."

We are reminded here of a story concerning Sir Isaac Newton. It is said that when he was studying the laws of light, he had a tub of water placed in front of his house and would sit for hours blowing soap bubbles and making observations on reflection and refraction. His simple neighbors, who knew nothing of the great thoughts passing through his brain, could not understand his behavior, but would sigh and shake their heads sadly and say: "Poor man!"

Bunyan's Experience.

John Bunyan has set forth the strangeness of the newborn in the eyes of men in his picture of Vanity Fair. When the pilgrims entered the fair there was a great hubbub about them and that for three reasons, first, "The pilgrims were clothed with such kind of raiment as they had traded at that fair. The people of the fair, therefore, made a great gazing upon them; some said they were fools, some they were madmen, and some they were outlandish men." (Chap. 27, S.) Secondly, "But as they wondered at their apparel, so they also wondered at their speech; for few could understand what they said; they only spoke the language of Canaan, but they that kept the fair were men of this world; so that, from the one side of the fair to the other, they seemed barbarians each to the other." (Chap. 27, S.) Thirdly, that which did not a little puzzle the merchants was that these pilgrims set very light by all their wares."

Since newborn men are unaccountable to the men of Vanity Fair, it follows that during this present evil age "the offense of the cross" will not cease. Our friends will marvel at our talk of heavenly things. They cannot understand our enthusiasm over fields of service which seem dreary to them; why a young man should give up a career or a young woman give up social prospects to become a missionary is to them an insoluble mystery. "So is everyone that is born of the Spirit," but to none are the newborn so mysterious as to those who themselves are seeking to enter the kingdom of God. John Bunyan tells how he heard "four poor women sitting at a door in the sun" talking of the new birth they had experienced, and declares "they were to me as if they had found a new world."

The Struggle.

A little later he writes: "The state and happiness of these poor people at Bedford was thus, in a kind of vision, presented to me. I saw as if they were on the sunny side of some high mountain, while I was shivering in the cold, afflicted with frost, snow and dark clouds. Although also bewitched and then I saw a wall that did surpass about this mountain, and through this wall my soul did greatly desire to pass. About this wall I thought myself to go again and again, still playing as I went, to see if I could find some passage, but none could I find for some time. At the last I saw as it were a narrow gap, through which I attempted to pass, but the passage being very straight I made many efforts, but all in vain. At last, with great striving, I at last did get in my head, and after that, by a side-way striving, my shoulders and my whole body. Then was I exceeding glad, and went and sat down in the midst of them, and so was comforted with the light and heat of their sun." Reader, do you wish to become one of God's mysterious men? Your part is simple, viz. to receive Christ. Read and heed John, 1:12, 13.

JESUS GIVES SIGHT TO THE BLIND.

To the thirty-three parables the thirty-three miracles of Jesus may well be added; for the latter were, in fact, parables too—deeds packed with an inexhaustible symbolism. The unlifted stones, the glaring faces of those who thirsted for His blood, have just forcibly reminded Jesus of the rapid approach of the night of death, in which He must cease from these symbolic deeds. He will grow old, the few remaining hours of His life will be crowding the apostles as they half halt in passing. "Judas began," His parents must have heavily sighed, "Thomas replied, 'Or God foretold great sin in him.' John adds, 'I know not what to think thereof.' Peter finally breaks out, 'Master, tell us who.'"

The words of Jesus may have fallen upon the ears of the unfortunate man; all the more alert because the other sense was lost. If so they were seeds of that faith which was so soon to shake like Lebanon. "Neither this man nor his parents," the old impostor had cast at him from childhood, "but his phenomenal suffering must be penalty of phenomenal sin." Now, that he is in this sad and, humanly speaking, remediless plight, through no fault of his or of his parents, he is furnished a rare subject for the display of My claim to Messiahship. I will make him a new, indelible, and lustrous seal upon My claim to Messiahship."

He pleased the Master to condescend to the use of crude materia medica of the day in order to strengthen the growing faith of the unfortunate man, and to make the cure the more conspicuous. Across the city he goes, holding the politics of clay to his sightless eyes, followed by an ever-increasing crowd of curiosity-mongers, some of whom, no doubt, give at his credulity. He went; he washed; he saw. As the clay lozenges dropped, Silas's mirrored surface reflected for him the beaming face of the temple-crowned man, and over all the azure dome.

What wonder that his very neighbors doubted the identity of the man upon whose expressionless face the light of the soul was now pouring through his opened eyes! The man himself has passed into a new world, but has no doubt about his being the same man who once cried on the temple steps, "Pity me, born blind!" Nor has he a shadow of doubt as to who wrought his cure. Mayhap some hired and overpaid emissary of the Sanhedrin lures him before that august body. It was for them, the most unfortunate "catch" they ever made. The man deposes like a self-possessed witness. He rests the irresistible power of his logic upon an indisputable fact, and bears down upon it with the vigor of true majesty. Behold the ancient, vaunted, colossal superstructure of an effete ecclesiasticism topples to its fall! There is a wild scurrying to its rescue.

The attempt is made to terrorize the man's parents into the lie that his blindness was not congenital. Their very flimsy evidence, the man's own testimony, the man's own value of their testimony. The man himself is now recalled, and as if in his absence a foul plot has been discovered to foist Jesus upon the nation by means of a fictitious miracle, he is adjured by all the pains and penalties at discretion of the Sanhedrin to deny the validity of his cure.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Across the page of an autograph album in the home of a German professor a great American clergyman once wrote "The question is not so much how sin got into the world as to how to get sin out of the world." "Jesus steers his disciples away from a subject that is purely speculative in character. He simply affirms that in this life, though the parties were not sinless persons, the uncommon suffering was not due to an unusual degree of sin in them. But Providence would avail Himself of this instance to show the power of Christ." "An ecclesiastical thought of Victor Hugo is—that the normal condition of our world is one of darkness, only relieved by the intrusion of the illuminating orb. What may be more correct? regards the material, is fact in the moral sphere. The darkness of men's minds to the things of God is only relieved by Him who said, 'I am the Light.'"

"Tendall can trace the metamorphoses of sunlight. In every fire that burns, he sees a dispensing of light which originally belonged to the sun. Yet, when it comes to believing that the moral darkness of the human soul can be irradiated, he hesitates. The miracles of sunlight to one so competent to define them, ought to make belief in the miracles of moral illumination easy."

April 1, 1917. 1 Kings XIX. 1-13. THE QUIET WAYS OF GOD'S PROVIDENCE.

(Consecration Meeting.) Luther said to his friend, "Philip, I saw a miracle last night!" "Did you? What was it?" was the question asked with the anticipation that it might be another Constantine cross in the sky.

"Yes," said the reformer, "I looked out of my window and saw the spangled dome of heaven supported on nothing!" That is the great standing miracle unnoticed. The hand that holds all nature up is invisible and noiseless. The Kingdom of God's grace comes also so noiselessly that it is unobserved. But grace is as mighty as Providence. Abundance is another characteristic both of nature and grace. Atmosphere is seventy miles deep. Can it ever be breathed up? Water covers two-thirds of earth's surface. Can it ever be drunk up? So in Grace there is enough for each, all and forever! In each recipient the water is a well springing up perennially.

EMPIRE Mechanical Milker

One man, using only one double unit, can milk 20 to 30 cows per hour, besides doing the stripping and carrying the milk. Single Units, each of which will milk 10 to 15 cows per hour, can be had if preferred. One man can operate two or three single units. Helvers and old cows both like the EMPIRE Milker and take to it quickly. The frequent increase in milk flow proves that. The illustration shows you the Double Unit outfit in actual operation, except for the small pump and tank which supply the vacuum. Any suitable power will drive the pump.

Hand milking is a hard job in cold weather, in fly time, after a hard day's work or any other time—especially hard when you are short-handed. The EMPIRE Milker takes care of a job nobody likes. Pays you a hard some profit. Insures your cows always being milked regularly, quickly and uniformly. It's goodbye to hand milking and everybody glad of it. The EMPIRE Milker is a fine machine. Absolutely reliable. Successful everywhere. Guaranteed by the Empire Cream Separator Company. See for yourself how simple, sure and reliable it is. Will be glad to show it to you at your first opportunity.

Two negro porters are held in the open the strong-box last night. Robert Staples, who was arrested when the strong-box was opened, is placed in his cell, however.

Smith, Sr., was responsible for the arrest of his suspicious boy, who was caught by the action of the strong-box. Smith, Sr.,

This morning he brought Smith into his case. Smith was arrested, but made a denial that he was in the shop except when the Leary porter was so emphatic in his statement that Smith did not see the watchman enter and asked for the chiave.
The police believe that Smith is "running" on Smith's hopes of securing some money.

On the morning of the arrest, Smith was in the shop, and was expected to return this afternoon, when the strong-box will be brought into court.

Changing a Name.

The brother of Mrs. de Pompadour had at first been created Marquis de Candore, a somewhat unfortunate name for a man of such nobility, and he soon discovered to his profound amusement that his enemies would perpetrate in calling him the Marquis
"Avant Hier" the Marquis of the Day Before Yesterday.

Mrs. de Pompadour, naturally sensitive in such matters, brought the affair before the king and, as a title more or less was a small matter to grant the lady who grasped so much, after due forms her brother became the Marquis de Marigny. From "Mme.
Candore."

One Virtue of Books.

"What if a book is dull?" inquires Samuel McChord Crothers in one of the monthly magazines. "It can't follow you about. It can't buttonhole you and say, 'One word more.' When you shut up a book it stays shut." Dr.
Crothers' opinion suggests a new test for the books on your shelf. Which ones stay shut? Which ones call out,
"Read me?" It is not the loudest books one loves best. Loud speaking books defeat their purpose if they deaf-en you. You can't hear yourself think. Quieter voices reach the ear better. But books do know their place, and sometimes that's a big relief. -Col-

That Wheeze About Women Wearing Pants Is Not A Joke Any More; Its A Fact

By Margaret Mason.
(Written for The Gazette.)
The busy housewife pants these days
as she goes up the stairs.
You see she's cast her skirts aside
For trouserettes indoors.

New York, March 30.—In a class with the heavy and decrepit mother-in-law joke the one about the advanced female donning the trousers has done equally long and faithful service. But to the beholder the latter wheeze has now ceased to be a joke and in these days of 1917 become a stern reality.

Dr. Mary Walker blazed the trail for the wearing of masculine network. I believe, but it took a heap of red tape to keep them on.
Mme. Curie more recently gained the permission of her government to wear trousers after a great deal of trouble and time, but now everybody's doing it with the greatest ease and nonchalance.

Along with the high cost of living and other evils, this female nine percent for trousers must be blamed on the poor old war. Only this time it is no evil, but a blessing in disguise—of pants.

With the women forced to take over the tasks of males in all the fighting countries, naturally it was most that they should take over the cut of their clothes as well. One can't very ad-aptly wear engines, plow, drive motors and run elevators all done up in skirts and petticoats.

Sitting on the sidelines, Maiden America, and Matron America as well, have calmly appropriated, as they do all imported fads and fashions, those bifurcated garments for their own and paid no longer merely with emotion or rebellion, but with gingham, denim, chambray, silk and satin.

By a quaint whimsey of fate it isn't the advanced female of the joke who is now wearing the trousers effects, however, but the dear, romantic little wives and mothers, the "queens of the home" and "the housewives of the heart."

As a first aid to baking, brewing, sweeping and chores of the home in general, nothing could be neater, sweeter or better than one of the new pantaloone house-dresses.

COMMISSION HEARING ON PAVING OF STREETS

Council This Afternoon Ready to Hear Protests Relative to Improvements Necessary.

A hearing on street improvements relative to curb, gutter and pavement, was held by the city commission in the office of Mayor Father's this afternoon. Previous to the time scheduled for the session it was not expected that any serious objection to the proposed improvements of the thoroughfares listed would be made, as these are the same streets for which the board of public works held a meeting about two weeks ago, at which there were minor protests, regarding assessments. These protests, however, were found to be without foundation by the protestors when the real plans were fully explained.

The schedule adopted by the board of public works was the matter on which today's hearing was held, their findings coming as the result of the hearing held by them some time ago.
The streets covered in the report are Franklin, between Pleasant and Milwaukee; Main, between Basine and Shurman; Huff, between Court and North First; and North First, between Huff and South Main. These are listed for brick pavement. Several portions of the streets named are to be improved, but it is upon pavement type to be laid. The brick-sections are actively in what has been determined as the down town and heavy traffic district.

DENTISTS RECRUIT TO BATTLE DEFECTS IN SOLDIERS' MOUTHS

Huntington, Ind., March 30.—Twenty thousand American dentists have been enrolled in the Preparedness League of American dentists in readiness to assist the United States government by remedying defective teeth of recruits. In addition sectional units have been organized for the study of modern surgical methods in treating sunshot wounds of the face and mouth, which with the advent of trench fighting has become an important part in war surgery.

In addition, through the National Dental association of which Dr. O. C.
King of Huntington is secretary, the war department has been offered the services of dentists to fill the offices of the reserve corps of the dental section with capable and efficient men.

The work of the dental association was begun when the movement of state troops to the border was ordered last year. Dr. King explains: "More than 2,000 applicants for enlistment were in danger of being refused entrance into the fighting force of the nation because of defective teeth. He said, but these men were given dental service by members of the association and thereby enabled to take their places in the ranks."

What was then done on a small scale the league is preparing to take up on a greater scale with the issuance of a call for volunteers for enlistment on a war basis of the present army and navy and volunteer state forces.

FORSEE HOT SCRAP
FOR BATTING HONORS
IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York, March 30.—This speaker's sudden elevation to the high years by Joe Jackson, is likely to precipitate one of the hottest scraps in the American League desk for the rest of the average list this year. But Ban Johnson or any other manager could never saw.

Joe struggled along for years, cracking the leather on lots of base balls and accumulating dizzy batting heights, but he never could pull out. Speaker came along, got set with a new club, and flung so fast and often that Cobb was forced to look on from a rear seat. He has been here ever since, in third place.

Joe has issued his challenge for this year. He says the name once hoisted by a president of the United States is going to be right at the top when Ban has pronounced next season's batting list in the lives of batters. Cobb, he says, may be second, or even Speaker may get that far, but he has served warning that

New York, March 30.—This speaker's sudden elevation to the heights of batting championship, sought many years by Joe Jackson, is likely to precipitate one of the hottest scrapes in the American league. It is a fact that the man of the stage, let them say that the circuit of the nation or any other man's circuit ever saw.

Joe struggled along for weeks, cracking the leather on a lot of bases, and then he came out in a dizzy batting heights, but Ty Cobb always was just good enough to pull out in the lead. Speaker came along, got set with a new club, and Ty Cobb was forced to look on from a rear seat, while Jackson merely looked on in third place.

Joe has issued his challenge for this year. He said, "and I am once more the president of the United States is going to be right at the top when Ban H. pronounces next summer's most important list in the list of batters."

Second, or even Speaker may get the far, but he has served warning that Joe is going to ride the winning horse.

Cobb also has made some pressing remarks in which he intimated that there isn't going to be glory without a few splits in the summer. He has set his eyes on that batting average, and he has been strong enough to stretch his legs hard for every blow.

Cobb, so one story has it, was a very much disappointed peach when in the last season he was asked to be the head of the American league average. He had acquired such a Ben Adams that it was hard to let go.

Was a great and surety, as mentioned to observe that it wasn't Jackson who challenged him, but Speaker, mainly, in a machine which shouldn't have placed him that high.

He has been deep in criticism from growing stagnant and carrying all interest to the younger league, the National league probably will find a little and a little in the game, so he is looking for a fight.

Jack Douber, long recognized as a king, didn't like it a bit when he was nosed on a year ago. He likes his principal better than any other man in the game, so he has promised to give him Chase, Rogers, Hornsby, Lew McCarthy, and some of the other aspirants of the climb of the young league. But John K.

It should be a busy little season for the average fielder.

An iron hand is going to rule the Chicago White Sox this year. Not

There are going to be stringent rules which no one can live up to, but it will be more along the lines of military discipline. Manager Howland, in the past, has been charged with being too lenient with his men, but if anybody thinks that he is going along the same easy path which he did the first year, he is in for a pumpered ball players in one of the shocks of their lives.

He started in early. The second night at Alameda, he found that the veterans had played cards until 12 o'clock at night. The trio have not had a card in their hands since he issued no orders against card playing, but warned the boys in advance they will quit at 11:30 sharp and he will know the reason why. The players all look alike this season, as after next fall there will be a holdover of two in one of the possibly two cases.

Talking about pitchers, Manager Howland relieved himself of this sentiment: "The first sign of loafing in any one of our pitchers is to give a ticket to the minors. I am thinking seriously of cutting down on seven twirlers for the season, and it will give me a chance of getting rid of some of them. I might as well say that the same goes for any of the rest, as we have plenty of candidates for all positions, and it could go even if we had not."

ANTI-TREATING BILL SLATED FOR DEATH

(Special to the Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., March 29. The assembly committee on liquor and fees has recommended for indefinite postponement the bill by assemblyman S. S. Saenger of Eau Claire, one to prohibit the sale of liquor on dining cars and a second to prohibit treating in the state. Assemblyman Julius Fingerson disapproved from the committee report on the anti-treating bill.

Assemblyman Saenger was the only one to appear in behalf of this measure. He said by treating treating was an evil which led many families into trouble because of the large amount of money which the husband spent in the saloon, forgetting that he had a wife to support. Mr. Fingerson asked Assemblyman Saenger if the bill did not prohibit a man buying a drink for his wife or a member of his family. Mr. Saenger admitted the bill carefully and then declared:

"Well, she would be better off anyway if she did not get liquor."

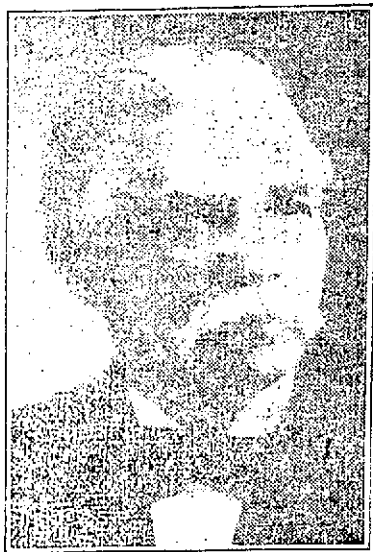

To a second question by Mr. Austin as to whether he did not think that with the passage of the Devoe bill enough had been accomplished, Assemblyman Saenger replied:

"If the Devoe bill is adopted by the people it will not take effect until July, 1920. I think it would be a good plan to start wearing them off a little so they would get used to it."

F. A. Cleary pointed out that Wisconsin had an anti-treating law in 1881 but that it was repealed in 1882 because the measure could not be enforced. William Gleason, representing the Retail Liquor Dealers' association, characterized the measure as another means of persecution. In 1913 an anti-treating bill passed the senate by a vote of 17 to 12 and was killed in the house. In 1915 an anti-treating bill passed the assembly by a vote of 47 to 29, and was killed in the senate. The unfavorable report on both measures, the one for selling liquors on trains and the anti-treating bill, was filed in the house today.

THEN SOME ARE SICKLY.

This consists of growing good, sound, marketable Holland type of cabbage on land which is "cabbage sick" and where the "yellows" disease has reduced yields enormously. By breeding up a disease-resistant variety of cabbage, the plant specialists of the Wisconsin experiment station have been able to save the cabbage industry of one of Wisconsin's important growing regions. Truck growers who had abandoned the cabbage business through discouragement, have gone back to it again, using home-grown seed of the new Wisconsin Hollander variety. About 350 pounds of seed of this variety will be distributed among southeastern Wisconsin farmers next year.

AND NOW THEY'RE ALL RIGHT.

GOOD THINGS FROM WISCONSIN CHEESE

Wisconsin's dairy products should, for several reasons, find a regular place on our tables. Aside from a public pride in a state industry which supplies over half the nation's cheese, the nutritive value of cheese itself is enough to warrant it a prominent place on the family menu.

Experts of the federal department of agriculture at Washington estimate that there is more muscle-building material in a pound of cheese than there is in a pound of porterhouse steak. Neither is the difference in price an item to be disregarded. There are, of course, high-priced cheeses, but the average housewife uses such varieties for "trimmings," and finds the cheaper sorts just as good for the usual cooking purposes.

To keep cheeses from molding until the amount purchased is all used is a problem of many housewives. In order to prevent this, wrap it in a slightly damp cloth, then in paper, and keep it in a cool, dry, but not airtight place. Scraps of cheese should be kept separate from the main supply, as such odds and ends tend to increase the growth of mold.

Cheese should not be cooked too long or too fast, as it will lose its food value and become tough and leathery. For the same reason vegetables should be thoroughly cooked before cheese is added.

Grated cheese is, as a rule, only necessary for cheese straws and crackers. Running it through the meat chopper is a great deal easier and does not take nearly so much time.

Cheese Roast.—One cupful of cheese, one cupful of chopped nuts (any kind), one cupful of bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls chopped onions, one tablespoonful of butter, juice of one-half a lemon, salt and pepper. Cook onion in butter and a little water until tender. Mix together ingredients and moisten with water in which onion has been cooked. Put into a shallow pan and brown in the oven.

Cheese Sauce.—Three tablespoonfuls of butter, four tablespoonfuls of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, a fourth of a teaspoonful of red pepper, 1½ cupfuls of milk, one cupful of chopped cheese. Melt the butter, add the flour, seasonings and milk gradually; set over hot water and add the cheese. It is simple to add the cheese over hot water by taking the top off the teakettle and placing the saucepan over the opening.

This sauce is very appetizing when served with meats and especially chicken prepared in the following way: Select a chicken prepared for boiling; coat it with lemon juice; place a piece of sifted fat bacon on the breast; tie it on; wrap the chicken in a well-buttered cloth, put it to a steppan with sufficient boiling water to cover, with three or four sliced onions, a bunch of herbs, about twelve black and white peppercorns, and enough salt to season it; bring to a boil, and simmer for forty to sixty minutes, according to the size of the fowl. Remove the string and cloth and serve on a bed of steamed rice. Garnish with parsley and serve hot with the cream cheese sauce.

Boston Roast.—One can of beans or the same amount of cooked beans, one-half pound grated cheese, and some bread crumbs; salt. Mash beans or put them through the meat grinder. Add the cheese and sufficient bread crumbs to make the mixture stiff enough to be formed into a roll. Place in buttered pan and bake in a moderate oven. Baste frequently with one-half cupful hot water, in which one tablespoonful butter has been melted. Serve the roast with tomato sauce if desired.

Potatoes Stuffed With Cheese.—Split hot baked potatoes lengthwise, remove the contents without injuring the skin of the potato. Mash potato, add salt and pepper to taste and enough hot milk to make the mixture the consistency of mashed potato. Mix in some chopped cheese and beat until light. Refill the potato skins, piling up the mixture lightly; do not smooth over the top. Sprinkle with grated cheese and reheat in oven until the cheese is melted and a delicate brown.

It is of primary importance that the terms of a farm lease be so liberal that the tenant can make a good living for himself and family and accumulate some money or property each year. In no other way can a really good tenant be secured and retained from year to year, and without a good tenant there can be no profit to the owner and the farm will suffer. A. J. GLOVER.

CLOSE A LEASE FOR JANESVILLE CENTER

Present Location Secured for Another Year.—Other Business Transacted by Federation Board.

There was a special meeting of the board of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, held on yesterday at Janesville Center. It was called chiefly for the purpose of deciding on a place of location. It was necessary if the present place was used to have some changes so that proper ventilation could be assured. A committee headed by Miss Alden had conferred with Mr. Myers and he had agreed to so arrange matters with the Commercial club that an entrance into the hall opening on Bluff street could be secured. He also agreed to cover the floor with linoleum. Under these conditions the committee were empowered to close the lease with Mr. Myers to secure the store for another year. The question of matron also came up and the board voted to employ the present incumbent at the same price as at present with a week's vacation during the summer.

A civic committee was appointed by the president to work in co-operation with the Commercial club. This committee is composed of Mrs. Munger, the present chairman, and Mrs. George Parker, Mrs. Harry Bliss, Mrs. Frank Fember, Mrs. T. O. Stone and Mrs. Fred Capelle. They are to confer with the civic committee of the Commercial club as to their plans, and to choose helpers to assist them wherever necessary.

A report was given by Mrs. Starr Atwood of tentative plans for the annual luncheon of the city federation to be given on May 8th. It will be at the Congregational church and the speaker will be Miss Lottie Stearns, with the subject: "How to Secure a Woman's Building." A caterer will be engaged for the luncheon and a good menu prepared. The tickets will soon be ready and will be sold among the clubs belonging to the federation. The price will be 75c, of which 50c will be paid the caterer for the luncheon and the rest will go to defray the other expenses.

Ladies wishing to attend this annual function can become individual members of the federation by paying the 25c yearly dues. They are then eligible to all privileges of membership.

ship. The regular monthly meeting of the board will be held on next Thursday at the usual time. The president, Mrs. S. M. Smith, also gave notice that the federation would hold a rummage sale in the early fall, and that a storage room had been provided where larger articles that people wanted to get rid of could be stored until the time of sale.
